

Motec Life - UK and KITAID Collaborate in 'Youth Sports Medicine'

Mr Ofori-Atta has delivered footballs and sports kit to Akosombo International School at the end of the June 2011 working visit to Ghana. The donation is part of collaboration between Motec Life - UK and a British Charity called KITAID that aims at supporting the youth develop their football talents and also make a healthier use of their free time. The General Manager of International Schools of Mr Seshie expressed his profound gratitude to Motec and KITAID. He also appealed for help for more kits and sports equipment to support the schools effort to promote football in Ghana. Mr Ofori-Atta also donated football kits and footballs to the Akosombo ladies football club in June which were received by Dr Rebecca Acquah - Arhin on behalf of the Ladies. In appreciation of the donation, Dr Acquah-Arhin said the donation will thrill the team. A photo shoot of the team is expected to be posted on the web site shortly.

KITAID founder Mr Derrick Williams who operates from Veola Water in Hatfield, Hertfordshire has promised to continue to promote sports in sub-Saharan Africa.

Motec is hoping to ship sports kits to the International School (1000 students in two locations at Akuse and Akosombo) and some youth clubs in rural Ghana in September.
