

Motec Receives donation from J Sainsbury's Community Grant

Sainsbury's Superstore at Apsley, Hemel Hempstead was the venue for a donation to Motec's NUWLIFE

- Nutrition Working for Life project at Jirapa, Upper West of Ghana (please visit project site at website). Mr Mike Thomas, Deputy Manager at Sainsbury, Apsley donated a cheque of £200 (via Charities Aid Foundation) to Motec at the forecourt of the superstore on Thursday 10th February.

Mr Thomas said in a statement: We hope the funds will make a difference to people out there. We are keen to get a feed back on your work. Mr Thomas was supported by a customer services lady Gema. Receiving the donation, Mr Ofori-Atta thanked Sainsbury for the support they have shown in our children's nutrition project in Ghana. He assured Sainsbury's that the funds will go into the NUWLIFE project and the deed of covenant of the Charities Aid Foundation will be followed to the letter.

He expressed the appreciation of Motec for the response shown by Sainsbury to Motec emphasising that it was never going to be easy for donors to take on new Charities in the current economic climate but not withstanding the barriers, Sainsbury has done all of us proud. He hoped that this would mark the beginning of the support for children living in one of the harshest environment in the world. In attendance were Motec's officials - Motec's Welfare Officer-elect Linda Bigham. Organising; secretary Kay Bowers, Legal Officer Dr Kofi Amu-Darko and his wife Evelyn.

A million thanks to J. Sainsbury
